

SINCE 1952

307 WEST 36TH STREET

307 WEST 36TH STREET

Completed in 1926 by the architect Emery Roth, 307 West 36th Street is a classic pre-war 18-story commercial high-rise building originally known as Garment Wear Arcade. Boasting an elegant, recently renovated, white marble arcade lobby featuring entrances on both 36th and 37th Streets, the building offers more than 250,000 square feet of office space in the historic Garment District.

307 West 36th Street has become home to a wide range of tenants from notable fashion brand Rebecca Taylor to civic design firm, Urbahn Architects and many non-profits such as GOOD+ Foundation and the Neighborhood Housing Services of New York City.

The building has a number of nearby transportation links including A, C and E trains, and the LIRR from Penn Station, which makes for easy access to and from the building. Located nearby are an array of exceptional food and beverage options to choose from whether it be day or night.

GARMENT DISTRICT

The Garment District lies at the heart of the commuter triangle, marked by Penn Station, Grand Central Station and Port Authority Terminal. Situated between Fifth Avenue and Ninth Avenue, from 34th to 42nd Streets, this area is also know as the Fashion District. It has rich history as home to showrooms, fashion design and production houses, as well as garment wholesalers. Well-known labels like Carolina Herrera, Calvin Klein and Donna Karan among others all maintain a collection of showrooms, production centers and offices in the area.

Even with its rich history in fashion, the economics of manufacturing have changed over the years, so the district has seen an influx of other businesses, including media, creative agencies, law firms and tech. Even so, local sample sales still prove popular with workers and residents.

Art plays a vital role in the area with Space for Public Art – a street-level space for local artists and designers to grab the attention of passers-by. For a mix of art and café culture, MacarOn Café and Café Grumpy are popular destinations.

For mainstream retail all needs are met at 34th Street and Herald Square. Bryant Park to the east offers open space and seating to meet and relax, alongside the stunning New York Public Library's main building and its 50 million-plus catalog.

The major transportation hubs at Penn Station, Moynihan Train Hall, and Times Square serve the Garment District, with access to 1,2,3,A,C,E,N,Q,R and W trains, plus connection to New Jersey Transit, Amtrak, and Long Island Rail Road. Metro-North Railroad can be accessed from Grand Central Terminal.
