Commitment

GFP is committed to its tenants and its neighborhoods. We believe that together we can create better local communities and a stronger city.

As multi-generational New Yorkers, the Gural family prioritizes family values and a legacy of community improvement.

Our family members and employees are committed to making the city a better place to live and work, through civic engagement, community involvement, and nurturing longstanding relationships with small businesses and non-profits.

GFPRE leases more than three million square feet of office space to non-profit organizations that might otherwise be priced out the city.

Through our commitment to non-profits, we strive to make our city and the world a better place for every one.

GFP Real Estate (formerly Newmark), circa 1970s

Since 1952

Now in our third generation of ownership, GFP Real Estate has a long history of working to build a better New York City.

GFPRE is proudly run by the Gural family, including Chairman Jeffrey Gural and Co-Chief Executive Officers Eric Gural and Brian Steinwurtzel, General Counsel AnnyRose Pahl and Principal Jane Gural-Senders.

Carrying on the tradition started by Founder Aaron Gural, the family leadership remains focused on improving New York City through property development, strong tenant relationships, and community involvement.

In 1952 Aaron Gural and partners acquire Newmark & Company, a real estate management, brokerage and holdings firm.

In 1931, at the age of 14, Aaron Gural began his entrepreneurial career selling ice cream on the George Washington Bridge. Shortly after, he started work reading water and electrical meters, beginning his real estate ventures.

Company History

1950s

In 1952, Aaron Gural and partners acquire Newmark & Company, a real estate management, brokerage and holdings firm.

In purchasing 230 Fifth, Aaron and partners are among the first to use a syndication model for acquisition.

1960s

Aaron Gural and partners purchase a leasehold interest in 515 Madison Avenue from Aaron's uncle, Aaron Rabinowitz of Fred F. French Company.

This marks the firm's first addition of a Class A building to its growing portfolio, as well as its expansion into Manhattan's renowned Plaza District. During these years, the Company handles both the management and leasing for the entire New York portfolio of the Furman-Wolfson Trust, which comprised over 30 buildings and was the first REIT to file with the SEC.

1970s

Jeffrey Gural joins the firm with Barry Gosin following a few years later.

Together in 1978, Jeff and Barry purchase the management and brokerage company what is known today as Newmark Knight Frank, from Aaron Gural and partners. Aaron, Jeff and Barry commence on a buying spree and begin converting manufacturing buildings to Class B office space. The firm's principals and partners acquire 520 8th Avenue, cementing the Company's presence in the Garment District.

2010s to today

In 2011, Newmark Knight Frank (NKF) is sold to BGC Cantor Fitzgerald, while the Gural family and partners maintain ownership, management, and leasing of their real estate portfolio as Newmark Holdings.

In 2017, NKF becomes a separate public company. To avoid confusion, Newmark Holdings changes its name to GFP Real Estate. The portfolio's growth continues, through acquisitions of 40 Exchange Place and numerous properties in Brooklyn and Long Island City.

1980s

In a decade of great expansion throughout New York City, the Company's principals and partners purchase buildings in Tribeca, Union Square, Astor Place, Soho and Hudson Square including 40 Worth Street, 740 Broadway, 200 Varick Street, 594 Broadway and 560 Broadway (now 100 Crosby Street).

1990s

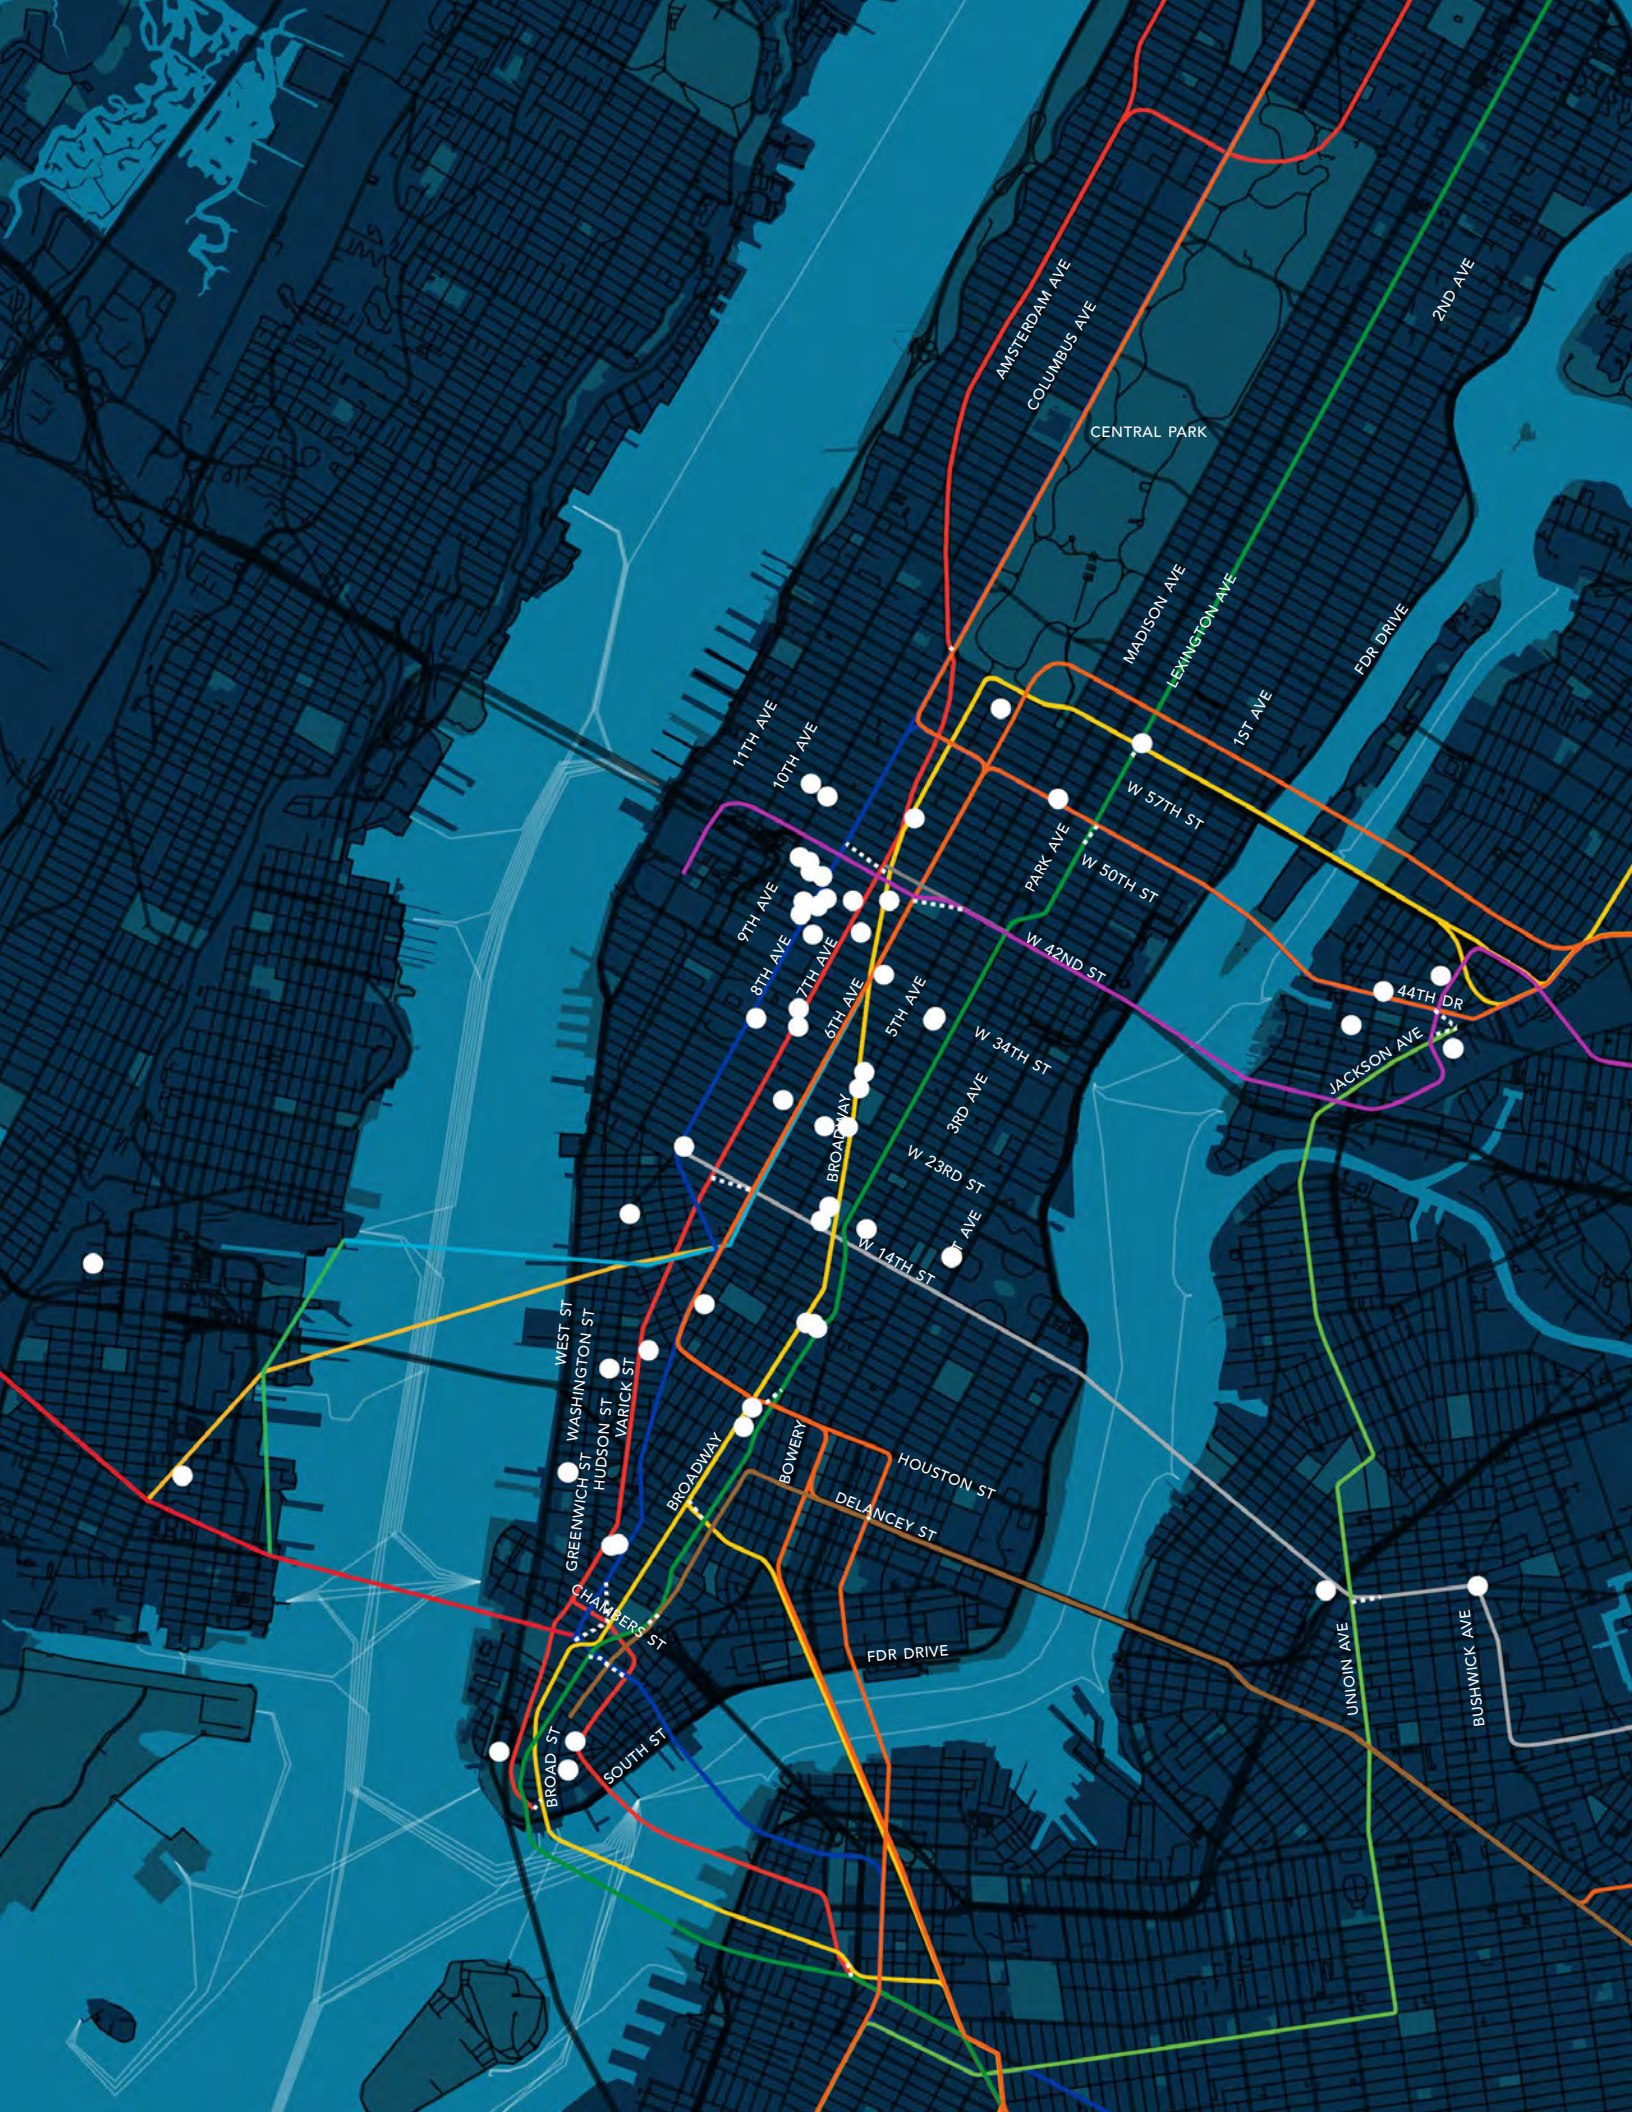

Eric Gural joins the Company. The Firm's principals and partners purchase the storied Flatiron Building, one of the city's most iconic properties. Newmark Knight Frank's brokerage business doubles in size. With an eye to future market trends in the city, they continue converting manufacturing buildings in the Garment District.

2000s

Brian Steinwurtzel joins Newmark. 17 Battery Place and 150 Bay Street are converted to residential properties. In 2009, the firm completes the largest deal of the year in Manhattan, with the Gap moving its East Coast headquarters to 40 Worth Street.

During this period, Jane Gural-Senders & AnnyRose Pahl join the company.

GFPRE owns and operates a portfolio of more than 55 properties that comprise over 12.8 million square feet of office, retail, residential and industrial space in the New York Metropolitan Area. The company also manages additional properties, totaling over four million square feet for third-party clients.
